Ross on Radio Virtual Talk for Vermont's Personalities & Programmers!

REGISTER IN ADVANCE HERE!

The VAB understands radio personalities and programmers are stretched thin, making it hard to get away for a day to in-person events. But the VAB still wants to make sure you have plenty of professional growth opportunities, which is why we're bringing the opportunity to you virtually!

Wednesday, September 21st from 10:15-11:30am, Sean Ross, the author of one of our industry's most popular weekly newsletters, Ross on Radio, will do a virtual talk just for Vermont's radio personalities and programmers! Sean is a radio business researcher, programming consultant and a veteran of radio trade journalism at Billboard, Radio & Records, M Street Journal and others.

Send topics you'd like to hear Sean discuss to vab@vab.org no later than Friday, September 9th and register in advance to participate here!

Join the VAB's New "Futures" Committee

Changing listener/viewer habits and technology are having a dramatic effect on the broadcast industry. To help us navigate our way through all this rapid change, the VAB is forming a new "Futures" committee that will meet via ZOOM.

If you want to better understand, stay up-to-date and share thoughts and ideas about how to handle the paradigm shifts and technology that is influencing our industry, you are invited to join the VAB's new Futures committee!

We will start by exploring the three most talked about topics at the NAB Show; the Connected Car Dashboard, podcasting and ATSC 3.0. This committee's goal will be to create best practice suggestions for stations to stay relevant and competitive in the digital age! Whether you are an air-personality, Reporter, Anchor, AE/Marketing Consultant, Manager, Engineer or support staff, your contribution is welcome as these issues need to be tackled with all perspectives represented.

Average time commitment is estimated at one 40-minute ZOOM call per month or as needed and the first meeting will take place in early September. To join, email vab@vab.org
